

Contingency Indent Approval Workflow

How a Principal Investigator's request to spend from a project's contingency budget (miscellaneous project expenses that don't fit consumables or equipment) is raised, escalated through the office, and finally approved or rejected. Same seven-stage office-escalation route as consumable and equipment indents.

Raised by Principal Investigator (Faculty), against a project budget head Stages 7

Terminal outcomes Approved (at Director) · Rejected

As with all procurement indents, the portal checks the budget head's uncommitted balance before allowing the request to be raised at all — the estimated cost cannot exceed what's left after other active indents and travel claims on the same head, and what's already been paid.

APPROVAL SEQUENCE

1

The PI raises the contingency indent with the estimated cost and GeM availability. The raiser's own stage.

2

The file reaches the OSRC office queue.

WHY Stages 2 through 5 are hand-offs, not decisions — Regular Staff, Superintendent, Deputy Registrar, HOD, and Dean can all move the file forward, but none of them can approve or reject it. Decision authority is kept to the last two stages so a contingency spend can't be waved through mid-chain.

6

Forwarded to DR

Approve

Reject

Dean or Director may approve or reject.

7

Director

Approve

Reject

Final decision. Approval clears the contingency spend to proceed.

NOTE Value and GeM availability decide the printed annexure form (and, above ₹2,00,000 non-GeM, a purchase committee) — the approval route itself never changes by amount.
