

Manpower Document Approval Workflow

How the office escalation and sign-off for a recruitment drive's merit list is approved. This is not the full recruitment pipeline — advertising, screening, interviewing, and ranking candidates happen outside this workflow entirely (see the separate Recruitment reference). This workflow is only the office approval step for the merit list document once the selection committee has signed it.

Raised by Dean, once the signed merit list and selection paperwork are ready Stages 7

Terminal outcomes Approved (at Director) · Rejected

Before this workflow can be raised, every member of the selection committee must have digitally signed the merit list. The Dean is the one who raises this workflow instance — not the PI — because the merit list is the recruitment drive's own approval to move to offer, and it is the Dean who has already confirmed the committee's sign-off.

Final decision. Approval here is what allows the PI to issue the offer letter to the selected candidate — provided payment against the position's budget head has also been confirmed.

WHY Recruitment is otherwise its own bespoke pipeline with no office-escalation chain of its own — advertising, screening, and interviews don't need one, since they're the PI's and committee's own procedural steps. The merit list is the one moment recruitment genuinely needs the institute's chain of custody (department through Director) before a real hire is offered a position, so it's the one place recruitment borrows this standard route.
